2. Once logged in, you should be taken to the Reviewers homepage. If this is not what you see, you can click the home icon on the left side of the screen to view the different homepages available. You should click Reviewer here to get back to the homepage, and can click this at any time to return to this page.

3. Under My Reviews, there are 3 option to filter the results you see. First, you can filter by review status. Pending review will show all programs which have not been reviewed by you yet. 'Review Submitted' will show the programs for which you have already submitted a review. All will show all proposals, regardless of whether you have submitted a review or not. In the app cycles section, you can filter your results to a certain time period. For example, if you would like to filter for proposals only in the future, you can select them from the drop down box. Finally, you can filter by program – in this case, you would want to filter by Faculty-Led Proposal. This gives you the list of proposals in your department.

4. You can review the proposal by clicking on the faculty member's name. On this page, you have the full program proposal. You can scroll down to view the faculty member's responses to required questions. You also have the option to minimize sections by clicking on the headings. The faculty members have the option to attach documents throughout their proposal. In this proposal, you can see that the syllabus was attached. Click on the syllabus to open the document in Word.

Custom Parameters

- Once you are finished reviewing the proposal, you will enter your approval in the Reviewer Feedback section at the bottom of the proposal. You may leave comments – these are for the Office of Global Affairs to view and are not reported to the faculty member. You may then click to Accept, Reject, or Waitlist the proposal. It is highly unlikely that you would choose to waitlist a proposal, but if you do, you should add comments to let the Office of Global Affairs know why. One example may be if the program is underdeveloped and you would like the faculty member to complete more items. After choosing your recommendation, click the checkbox to Mark as Completed and click Submit. If you do not wish to make a recommendation yet, you may click cancel to review again later.

The screenshot shows a web interface for providing reviewer feedback. It features a purple header with the text "Reviewer Feedback". Below this is a light blue section labeled "Comments:" containing a large text input area with a cursor. A character count below the input area reads "4000 characters left". The next section is also light blue and labeled "Recommendation:". It contains three radio button options: "Accept", "Reject", and "Waitlist". Below these is a checkbox labeled "Mark as completed". A red warning message is displayed below the checkbox: "Your review is not considered completed until this checkbox is marked. You can make preliminary notes and judgments here without marking the checkbox then return later to finalize your review later." At the bottom of the form are two buttons: "Submit" and "Cancel". The Windows taskbar is visible at the very bottom of the image.
